
PART 2: CONGRESSIONAL BRIEFING

Congressional Staff Members Share Perspective from Capitol Hill

Two of the top health policy experts on Capitol Hill joined NAPHS Annual Meeting attendees for a Congressional Briefing held in the Rayburn House Office Building.

NAPHS Executive Director Mark Covall (far right) welcomed the panelists: Mike Zamore (left below), policy advisor in the office of Rep. Patrick Kennedy (D-RI), and Catherine Finley (right below), minority staff director, Senate Special Aging Committee, office of Sen. Gordon Smith (R-OR).

Here (photo on the left) Catherine Finley talks with NAPHS past president Dennis P. King, CEO of Spring Harbor Hospital and vice president, behavioral health, MaineHealth.

NAPHS President Diana L. Ramsay, executive vice president and chief operating officer of Sheppard Pratt Health System, (photo on the right) talks with Mike Zamore.

Annual Meeting Program Committee member Allan Jones (standing below), vice president of business development, United Medical Corporation, Windermere, FL) talks with Stephen Fahey, president and CEO, Hall-Brooke Behavioral Health Services, Westport, CT, as the session begins.

NAPHS Executive Director Mark Covall (left) and NAPHS Director of Congressional Affairs Nancy Trenti, J.D. (right), talk with panelist Mike Zamore.

NAPHS President Diana Ramsay joins other Annual Meeting participants in lobbying congressional leaders during the 2007 NAPHS event.

