KATHY KORDELSKI, RN:

Kathy Kordelski is a registered nurse who has worked in the field for over 25 years and for Universal Health Services, Inc., for approximately seven years. Kathy is currently corporate behavioral health risk manager for Universal, where she handles medical malpractice and general liability claims for a behavioral health division of 44 hospitals. When she was corporate clinical director for Universal, it was her responsibility to ensure facilities met state, JCAHO, and CMS accreditation standards. Kathy has also worked as chief nursing officer and an interim CEO within Universal Health Services. All her experience has culminated in her comprehensive understanding of the intricacies of applying systems and processes to healthcare systems with the net result of improving patient care.

DAVID M. SINE, CSP, ARM:

David Sine is president of Safety Logic Systems in Austin, TX. He has had more than a 20-year career in safety risk management, human factors, and organizational consulting. He has been the state safety director of two Eastern states, the senior staff engineer for the JCAHO, and a senior consultant for the AHA. He has also been a founding partner and one-time contributing editor for Briefings on Hospital Safety and a co-author of Quality Improvement Techniques for Hospital Safety. Mr. Sine is certified by the Joint Board of the American Board of Industrial Hygiene and Certified Safety Professionals and as a certified professional healthcare risk manager by ASHRM. He has been a healthcare risk management consultant since 1980 and has conducted over 1300 JCAHO compliance assessment surveys. He serves as a member of the NFPA 101 Life Safety Code Subcommittee on Health Care Occupancies, the JCAHO Committee on Healthcare Safety, and acts as a risk management advisor to the National Association of Psychiatric Health Systems.
